This report highlights both the continued overall success of transfer students following their transfer to research universities, and the ongoing change in how students transfer within BC's post-secondary system, as institutions change and new pathway options become available.

INTRODUCTION

This report examines transfer student pathways and performance from BC Transfer System institutions into BC's public research-intensive universities: Royal Roads University (RRU), Simon Fraser University (SFU), Thompson Rivers University (TRU), University of British Columbia (UBC), University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC), and University of Victoria (UVIC). The analysis uses data from the 2013/14 academic year through to the 2017/18 academic year.

BCCAT has commissioned similar reports for nearly 30 years, with the latest editions completed in 2010<sup>1</sup> and 2015<sup>2</sup>. These reports have found utility among several audiences. Sending institutions may use the information in their curriculum and student success planning, as well as in student recruiting, while receiving institutions may use the information to evaluate transfer student success or to refine admission requirements.

This report highlights both the continued overall success of transfer students following their transfer to research universities, and the ongoing change in how students transfer within BC's post-secondary system, as institutions change and new pathway options become available. While the educational journeys of transfer students differ from those of direct entry students in a number of ways, most performance trends seen in data from direct entry students are echoed in data from the transfer student population.

The report begins with a description of the background of the research project and a description of the research methodology. The results of the data analysis are then presented in three parts: a profile of transfer student demographics and activity, a comparison of the academic performance of direct entry students and transfer students, and a comparison of transfer student and direct entry students in specific courses.

The Background and Methodology section in Appendix A contains detailed information on data definitions and the scope of the project.

PART 1: STUDENT PROFILE

Number of Students

Key findings from this report include an 8% increase in the number of transfer students when compared to the numbers in the 2015 report. Of the 80,140 students for whom there were data between 2013/2014 and 2017/2018, 30,104 (36.2%) were transfer students, while 53,036 (63.8%) were direct entry students (Table 1; Figure 1).

Note: Masking small numbers example: A cell is considered sensitive if the row or column total or subtotal is smaller than 10. The cell is masked with "X". When a total denominator is less than 10, all individual numbers are masked (e.g., University Canada West). When the denominator is greater than 10, individual numbers are not masked (e.g., Justice Institute of British Columbia). Totals in rows and columns with masked cells as well as another cell in the same row and column are rounded to the nearest 5, and marked with an asterisk. For tables that display percentages, rounding is to the nearest 5 percentage points. In tables that display averages (such as credits) the values are rounded to the nearest 0.1. Totals and subtotals for rows and columns with fewer than 10 students are represented as '<10' for numbers and are left blank for averages.

The sending institutions showing the largest increase in transfer student numbers included Fraser International College, created in 2006 with a transfer-based mandate sending students primarily to Simon Fraser University (+2,485 over 5 years), Alexander College (+491), Coquitlam College (+283), and Camosun College (+263). The sending institutions with the biggest decreases in transfers were Langara College (-304), Kwantlen Polytechnic University (-341), and Capilano University (-588) (Figure 2). It is likely that the evolution of several former colleges and university colleges into teaching-intensive universities could contribute to a decline in the number of outgoing transfers.

Notes: Sending Institutions with fewer than 10 transfer students (Fairleigh Dickinson University and University Canada West) are not shown in this chart. Athabasca University is not included because it was not part of the 2015 report. Quest University, Royal Roads University, and the Justice Institute of British Columbia are not included because they did not have any transfers listed in the 2015 report.

Transfer Credits at Admission

Across receiving institutions, the average number of transferred credits ranged from 38 at TRU to 61 at RRU, with an average of 49 transfer credits across all six institutions (Tables 5 and 6). Across all institutions, two largest groups were transfer students at the start of second year (30-34 credits transferred at admission; 16% of transfer students), or third year (60-64 credits transferred at admission; 22% of transfer students) of baccalaureate studies (Figure 4).

When a total denominator is less than 10, all individual numbers are masked. Totals in rows and columns with masked cells as well as another cell in the same row and column are rounded to the nearest 5, and marked with an asterisk. Averages for sending institutions with fewer than 10 transfer students are not shown. The totals do not include 1,506 transfer students with no data on credits transferred at admission.

Credits Taken in First 12 Months of Enrolment at Receiving Institution

The receiving institution with the highest number of credits transfer students took in their first 12 months post-transfer was RRU with an average of 43.6 credits. This was noticeably higher than 31 credits completed by RRU direct entry students in the same time period (Table 7; Figure 5). At the other receiving institutions, transfer students took one or two credits fewer than direct entry students. The high number of credits taken at RRU by transfer students likely influenced the overall average credits in the first 12 months for transfer students: transfer students on average took two credits more direct entry students (29.1 credits and 27.1 credits respectively) (Table 7).

The number of credits taken in their first 12 months of enrollment at a receiving institution ranged from 24.5 to 26.3 credits for transfer students, and from 22.1 to 28.7 credits for direct entry students (Figure 5). The difference in the number UVIC units (not credits) between transfer and direct entry students was roughly 1.5 units.

Note: ** UVIC data only include the student's first semester at UVIC, and are reported in units, not credits.

Notes: ** UVIC data only include the student's first semester at UVIC and are not included in the overall average. UVIC data are reported in units, not credits (units are typically about 0.5 credits).

The averages for sending institutions with fewer than 10 transfer students (Fairleigh Dickinson University and University Canada West) and the overall averages for Private Mainland/ Southwest sending institutions totals with fewer than 10 transfer students per receiving institution are not shown.

A higher proportion of transfer students took 18 to 23 credits during their first 12 months at the receiving institution (32% of all transfer students) than a corresponding proportion of direct entry students (19% of all direct entry students). Direct entry students were predominantly taking a higher credit load in their first 12 month at the institution: 39% of direct entry students were taking 24-29 credits, and 38% were taking 30-35 credits (Figure 6).

Academic Program

The Classification of Instructional Programs (CIP) categorization system was used to group students into the academic programs they were enrolled in and compare data across institutions. Most students (58.3% of transfer students and 64% of direct entry students) were enrolled in Arts and Science (Figure 7; Table 9). The next largest category was Engineering and Applied Sciences programs: 14.8% of transfer students and 14.6% of direct entry students were enrolled in these programs (Figure 7).

Specific numbers of transfer students by faculty/ school post-transfer are shown in Tables 10 through 15, and Figures 8 through 13.

- Students without a Faculty listed (No Faculty) are included at the UBC System level, rather than assigned to a specific campus
- No transfer students from Vantage College were identified. 243 direct entry students are not shown in the table but are included in the UBC System totals.

International and Aboriginal Status

The proportions of students self-identifying as aboriginal were very similar among transfer students and direct entry students, at 4% and 3%, respectively (Table 18). 4.4% of direct entry students and 27.1% of transfer students were international students (Table 19). Some of the difference between the numbers of international students is because some sending institutions focus primarily on recruiting international students.

Age

Transfer students were older than their direct entry counterparts, with an average age of 24.2, compared to 18.2 for direct entry students (Table 20). There was also a much wider distribution of age groups among transfer students (Figure 14). While direct entry students are a majority in the <19 age group (90.8%), transfer students are the majority of students older than 19 (Figure 14).

Transfer students from private institutions in the Mainland/Southwest region had the youngest average age of transfer students from all regions (Table 20). While transfer students admitted to SFU, TRU, UBC, and Uvic are, on average, in their early twenties, transfer students admitted to RRU and UNBC were on average in their late twenties. RRU students' average age was 27.7 years, and UNBC students' average age was 26.2 years (Table 21).

PART 2: PERFORMANCE

GPA Trends

The comparison of average admission GPA and graduation GPA for transfer students between 2003/04 – 2007/08 and 2008/09 – 2012/13 reports points to a small increase of the GPA for several receiving institutions; however, the comparison was not possible for other receiving institutions due to unavailable data (Table 24).

Table 24: Comparison of average admission GPA and graduation GPA for transfer students between 2003/04 – 2007/08 and 2008/09 – 2012/13 reports

Receiving Institution	Admission GPA			Graduation GPA
	2013	2018	Difference	2013	2018	Difference
RRU					3.59
SFU	2.97	3.02	0.05	2.97	3.00	0.03
TRU				3.22	3.34	0.12
UBC	76.20	77.56	1.36	74.70
UNBC	3.20	3.26	0.06	3.33	3.37	0.04
UVIC		5.70			6.23

Notes:

- UBC GPA was reported on percent scale.
- In the previous report UVIC reported on the 4.33 grading scale, while for this report used the 9 point scale.
- Admission GPA is not collected at TRU and RRU.
- RRU did not report graduation GPA in 2013, and UBC did not report graduation GPA in 2018.

At graduation, transfer students had higher GPAs than direct entry students at RRU (3.6 versus 2.9), and UVIC (6.2 versus 5.6). At the other institutions the difference in GPA was 0.1 points or less (Table 24).

Tables 25-27 show the GPAs by sending institution at admission, at 15 credits after starting at a receiving institution, and at graduation. Figures 15-19 present trends of GPA at the three points in time by region of transfer students, and compare these trends with the direct entry students' GPA. Tables 25-27 and Figures 15-19 show that transfer students' GPA is often comparable or higher than the direct entry students' GPA.

- UBC GPA was reported on percent scale.
- Admission GPA data were not collected at TRU and RRU.
- Overall averages were not calculated due to differences in grading scales between the institutions.
- A cell is considered sensitive if the row or column total or subtotal is smaller than 10. The cell is marked with "X". Totals in rows and columns with masked cells as well as another cell in the same row and column are rounded to the nearest 0.1, and marked with an asterisk. Totals and subtotals for rows and columns with fewer than 10 students are left blank.

Notes:

- SFU Admission GPA excludes students with fewer than 24 transfer credits (n=201) and students missing Admission GPA information in the Student Information System (n=58).
- SFU GPA At 15 Credits at receiving institution excludes students who have completed fewer than 15 non-co-op units (795 transfer students; 599 BC12 direct entry students) and students only awarded P grades for first 15 units (7 transfer students).
- SFU Graduation GPA excludes new students from 2013/14 – 2017/18 who have not completed a credential by 2017/18 academic year (8,632 transfers and 13,322 BC12 direct entries). Out-of-Province GPA is suppressed At Graduation due to small sample sizes (N<10).
- Direct entry GPA at Admission (87.06) is excluded as it is reported on a percentage scale. Admission GPA for Direct Entry students is high school GPA. Admission GPA for Transfer Students is post-secondary GPA. Transfer students are typically entering second or third year of post-secondary studies, while direct entry students are typically entering their first year of studies.

Degree Completion Rates

The more credits that transfer students transferred, the greater the likelihood was of them graduating within the study timeframe (Figure 20). At the receiving institutions that provided data on direct entry students (SFU, TRU, UBC, and UNBC), approximately 70% of transfer students completing a credential, compared to 60% for direct entry (Table 28).

Notes:

- A cell is considered sensitive if the row or column total or subtotal is smaller than 10. The cell is marked with "X". When a total denominator is less than 10, all individual numbers are masked. Totals in rows and columns with masked cells as well as another cell in the same row and column are rounded to the nearest 5, and marked with an asterisk. For percentages, rounding is to the nearest 5 percentage points.
- For direct entry students, the graduation rate was calculated for students who entered the receiving institution in the 2011/12 academic year who graduated from the receiving institution by the end of the 2017/18 academic year.
- UBC data did not contain a graduation year, so the UBC graduation rate was calculated for all UBC students who graduated during the study timeframe.
- UVIC data included graduation rate for transfer students admitted in 2013/14 - 2014/15. No data on direct entry students were available.
- No direct entry students at RRU.

Credentials Completed

Among graduates, 43% of transfer students and 34% of direct entry students graduated with a Bachelor of Arts, and 29% direct entry students and 18% of transfer students graduated with a Bachelor of Science (Figure 21).

The full lists of completed credentials by receiving institution can be found in Tables 32-37. The number of months and the number of credits to obtain a certain credential are also included.

Notes: Credentials were grouped by field of study by the authors. Appendix H lists credentials within each group.

Notes:

- Percentages do not add to 100 as the percentage of non-baccalaureate credentials (less than 2% of all credentials) is not shown.
- Transfer students were admitted in 2013/14 admission and graduated in or before 2017/18. Direct entry were admitted in 2011/12 and graduated in or before 2017/18.

Time and Credits to Complete Credential

Transfer students took an average of 33 months at the receiving institution to complete a credential, which is more than a year less than the completion time direct entry students (47.8 months) (Table 30). As transfer students had already spent some time at their sending institutions and often transferred to Year 2 or Year 3 of studies at a receiving institution, the average number of month to complete is smaller than those of direct entry students.

When the number of credits was controlled as a variable in the analysis (i.e., the number of months to graduation after 60 credits had been completed), transfer students similarly completed a credential sooner than direct entry students, with the difference of almost nine months (Table 31).

Notes: UVIC did not provide an average number of months for direct entry students.

- Fairleigh Dickinson University and University Canada West are not shown in this table as no transferring students from these institutions were identified as graduates.
- A cell is considered sensitive if the row or column total or subtotal is smaller than 10. The cell is marked with "X". Totals in rows and columns with masked cells as well as another cell in the same row and column are rounded to the nearest 0.1, and marked with an asterisk. Totals and subtotals for rows and columns with fewer than 10 students are left blank.

PART 3: COURSE PERFORMANCE

This section shows performance of transfer and direct entry students in selected courses at the second- and third-year level. The receiving institution chose which courses to include, with the exception of UBC which let the report authors decide. For UBC, the courses shown are the 10 largest courses at the second- and third-year levels.

The lists of course titles and overall average grades for direct entry and transfer students are shown in Tables 38 through 43. The course grades confirm that transfer students performance was often similar or better than the direct entry students' performance. The number of students, their grades in specific courses, and transfer students' sending institutions can be found in a separate Appendix for each receiving institution (Appendices B-G).

- An asterisk indicates course titles that no longer appear on the RRU website. While best efforts have been made to find the correct course title, it is possible that the title we found is out of date.
- As RRU admits very few students via direct entry, many courses listed have not been taken by direct entry students.

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

This report would not have been possible without the help of all the Research Universities' Council of BC (RUCBC) members. Their participation is gratefully acknowledged. These institutions are:

- Royal Roads University (RRU)
- Simon Fraser University (SFU)
- Thompson Rivers University (TRU)
- University of British Columbia (UBC)
- University of Northern British Columbia (UNBC)
- University of Victoria (UVIC)

APPENDIX A:

Background and Methodology

The BC Council on Admissions and Transfer (BCCAT) has been periodically publishing BC College Transfer Student Profile reports for almost 30 years. Previous reports include those by Lambert-Maberly (2010) and Tikina (2015). These reports tracked the mobility of students from colleges and institutes to degree granting research-intensive universities in BC. This type of transfer pathway is often referred to as linear or vertical transfer (e.g., Bahr, 2012; Miller, 2013; Mullin, 2012; Wang & Wickersham, 2014). Transfer patterns in BC have always been complex, because of the wide variety of institutions that participate in the BC Transfer System.

The BC post-secondary system underwent fewer major shifts between 2013/14 and 2017/18 than in the previous decade, and the effects of several of those major shifts began to emerge in transfer activity. In 2008 several BC university-colleges and colleges expanded their degree programming, and thus many students, who had previously had to transfer to universities to obtain a degree, could receive degrees from their “original” institution. The effects of these systemic changes became increasingly apparent in student mobility patterns the 2013/14 – 2017/18 timeframe covered by this report, specifically in a reduction of students choosing to transfer from these teaching-intensive universities for degree completion, and a proportionate increase in students transferring from other institutions.

As previous BC College Transfer Student Profile reports, this report aims at analyzing the demographic characteristics and academic performance of students transferring to research-intensive universities in BC between 2013/14 and 2017/18. Other transfer pathways were not considered.

Methods

This report follows the format of BCCAT’s most recent report, and uses the same method of data collection (Tikina, 2015). This report adds several new variables to the analysis, namely months to graduation after completing 60 credits, self-declared Aboriginal status, and national status. Additionally, the grouping of institutions by region now includes an “Out-of-Province” category for the two non-BC institutions in the BC Transfer System (Athabasca University and Yukon College). This report’s revised terminology for geographic groupings within British Columbia better aligns with the geographic classifications used by Statistics Canada.

All institutions with the exception of UBC provided data in the same format. UBC provided anonymized case-level data; and the report authors aggregated the data to the same format. As with the previous report (Tikina, 2015), the use of a common data submissions format helped to ensure that data were relatively comparable across participating institutions. Consistent with the methodology developed by Tikina (2015), this report defines the sending institution as the last institution that the student transferred from. The current report captures transfer students from all BC Transfer System (BCTS) member institutions (public and private) that students transfer from, while in the 2015 report, out-of-province BCTS institutions were not included.

Thompson Rivers University (TRU) and TRU’s Open Learning division were treated as a single institution for the purposes of the analysis. UBC-Vancouver (UBC-V) and UBC-Okanagan (UBC-O) campuses are also as a single institution, although charts with Faculty-level information include Faculties specific to UBC-V and UBC-O. “Internal” transfers between the UBC campuses and between the two TRU divisions are not included as transfers in this study.

Despite these methodological changes, the results are comparable with previous Profile and Performance Reports published by BCCAT.

For several of the analyses, sending institutions are grouped into regions, as shown in Table A1.

Table A1: Institutions by Region

Out-of-Province	Mainland/Southwest
Athabasca University	Public Mainland/ Southwest
Yukon College	British Columbia Institute of Technology
Cariboo-North/Yukon	Capilano University

Vancouver Island University	Fraser International College

	University Canada West

No transfers were identified in the data from Acsenda School of Management, LaSalle College Vancouver, or Yorkville University. These institutions are not included in the analysis.

In the tables, categories with small numbers of transferring students are masked to protect individual students' privacy. A row or column is considered to contain confidential information if the total of its cells is smaller than 10. In this case, totals and subtotals for rows and columns with masked cells as well as randomly selected cells in same rows and columns are rounded to the nearest 5 and marked by an asterisk (for tables that show percentages, rounding is to the nearest 5 percentage points; for tables showing averages such as credits, rounding is to the nearest 0.1). For performance data, cells with fewer than 10 students are masked. For course-specific data in the Appendices, cells with GPAs for fewer than 5 students are suppressed.

In the tables and charts, the term Total Transfer refers to BC students who enter an institution through transfer, while the term Total Direct Entry refers to students who enter an institution on the basis of having completed high school.

Metrics

As part of the compilation of the profile, we asked the participating universities to identify the metrics they use to monitor transfer student success. These metrics generally mimicked traditional performance metrics - credit loads, grade point averages, time to graduation, and rates for retention and graduation.

The metrics used in this analysis are similar to those used by these institutions. They are:

- Number of transfer students
- Sources of transfer students
- Transfer credits at admission
- Credits taken in first 12 months at receiving institution
- Faculty and program at receiving institution
- Age at the time of transfer
- Gender
- GPA at different times during studies at receiving institution
- Degree completion rate
- Credentials awarded to transfer students
- Time to graduation
- Number of credits at graduation
- Performance in selected courses frequented by transfer students
- Number of transfer students by national status
- Number of transfer students by self-declared Aboriginal status
- Time to graduation after completing 60 credits

Data Definitions

Italics denote terms also defined in this section.

Table A2: Data Definitions

Term	Definition
Academic Year	A 12-month period between September 1 and August 31 of the following year.
Age	Age as of September 1 in the academic year when the student was admitted).
BC Associate Degree	A credential earned upon completion of 60 first- and second-year university-transferable credits, awarded by a British Columbia post-secondary institution.
BC Transfer Students	For SFU, UBC, UNBC, and UVIC: an undergraduate student admitted with the basis of admission being “transfer from a college,” “transfer from a university,” “transfer with associate degree” or similar, or a student admitted with more than 15 transfer credits. The institution the student last attended must have been a member of the BC Transfer System, and the student must have at least 15 post-secondary credits transferred to the receiving institution. For RRU and TRU: an undergraduate student admitted with a minimum of 15 credits obtained at post-secondary institutions and transferred to the receiving institution, when the institution the student last attended was a member of the BC Transfer System. Where students attended multiple BC Transfer System institutions, the institution they transferred from is identified by: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• The most recent BC Transfer System institution attended.</li> <li>• If two institutions were attended simultaneously, the institution from which the student received the greater number of transfer credits.</li> <li>• If the same number of credits were transferred from both institutions, the institution that comes first alphabetically.</li> </ul>
BC High School Direct Entry Students	Students who enrolled in a post-secondary institution within one year of their high school graduation from a British Columbia secondary school.
Credential Awarded	Undergraduate credentials (degree, certificate, diploma, etc.) awarded at the receiving institution for BC Transfer Students and BC High School Direct Entry Students.  Students graduating with more than one credential are counted separately under each credential. For students who completed one or more degrees, only the first degree completed is included. If the student completed any other certificates or diplomas before being awarded the first degree, these other credentials are included.
Credits Taken	The total number of credits attempted (regardless of outcome) by the student in their first 12 consecutive months at the receiving institution. Credits do not include practicum and cooperative education courses.
Credits Transferred	All credits that BC Transfer Students transferred to the receiving institution, both from BC Transfer System member institutions as well as other post-secondary institutions.  Credits transferred are classified by the student’s most recent sending institution , rather than by the specific institution at which the course was taken.
Grade Point Average	A student’s average grade expressed in a numeric format using the receiving institution’s standard grading scale. Averages are calculated across all courses taken at the institution, thus excluding transferred credit.
Graduation Rate	For BC Transfer Students: The proportion of students who entered the receiving institution in the 2013/14 academic year who graduated from the receiving institution by the end of the 2017/18 academic year. For BC High School Direct Entry Students: The proportion of students who entered the receiving institution in the 2011/12 academic year who graduated from the receiving institution by the end of the 2017/18 academic year.
National Status	A student is classified as an international student if they ever attended the institution on a Canadian student visa, diplomatic visa or other visa.

Term	Definition
Receiving Institution	A British Columbia Transfer System (BCTS) institution that accepts transfer credit from other BCTS member institutions.
Selected 200- and 300-level Courses	Courses with enrollment from more than 50 BC Transfer Students between 2013/14 – and 2017/18. These courses typically are required core courses for programs frequently taken by BC Transfer Students. The data from TRU and RRU included courses with at least 30 of BC Transfer Students over the same period.
Self-Declared Aboriginal	A student who is a Canadian citizen and has self-identified as aboriginal, either on an application for admission or at a later time.
Sending Institution	The last BC Transfer System member institution attended by the student. The data only include students who transferred from a current member of the BC Transfer System. Institutions that no longer exist (e.g. Okanagan University College and the Institute for Indigenous Government) are not included in the data. BCTS member institutions Acsenda School of Management, LaSalle College Vancouver, and Yorkville University were not identified by any of the reporting institutions as having sent students during the period covered by the data. These three institutions have not been included as sending institutions in the data analysis.
Time to Graduation from 60 credits	The number of months between the beginning of the first semester/ term, in which the student has accumulated at least 60 credits (or equivalent), and the end of the semester in which they graduated.

The data include all students admitted in the 2013/14 through 2017/18 academic years, except for:

Tables related to months to graduation, credits to graduation, and number of credentials:

- All BC Transfer Students and BC High School Direct Entry Students who graduated in the 2017/18 academic year, regardless of when they were admitted.

Tables related to degree completion rates:

- Included within the “Number” column are all BC Transfer Students who were admitted in the 2013/14 academic year, which is used as the denominator for the graduation rate. The numerator is the number of students from this cohort who graduated before the end of the 2017/18 academic year.
- Included within the “Number” column are all BC High School Direct Entry Students who were admitted in the 2011/12 academic year, which is used as the denominator for the graduation rate. The numerator is the number of student from this cohort who graduated before the end of the 2017/18 academic year

APPENDIX C:

Selected SFU courses taken by transfer students with the number of students, their admission GPA and course GPA

SFU masked average GPAs for any group with fewer than 5 students, marked with "X." Further, if it would be possible to reverse engineer the average GPA for these groups, those groups and other groups in the same category had their number of students masked and are marked as "<5", "<10" or "<20"; for these groups average GPAs are still provided. Course titles are provided in Table 39 in the report.
