Overview

Conceived in the 1960s and 1970s as a binary system of three public universities and several public community colleges, the BC Transfer System has developed to include a diverse range of public and private universities, colleges, and institutes. Within the BC post-secondary context, autonomous institutions regularly cooperate in system-wide initiatives to meet students' evolving educational needs and goals.

The British Columbia Council on Admissions and Transfer (BCCAT), established by the Ministry of Advanced Education and Jobs Training in 1989, encourages system-wide cooperation through the development and maintenance of transfer agreements that support efficient student mobility and transferability of credits across a broad system of institutions, programs, and credentials: students who take equivalent courses or programs at one institution will be granted credit for courses or programs that have been determined to be equivalent, and can access information about where their credits or credentials will be recognized.

"Within Canada, BC leads as a jurisdiction for offering tightly integrated pathway programs...BC also benefits from the presence of de facto international student pathways due to the long-established BC Transfer System facilitating transitions between colleges and universities."

(Daniel Guhr et al., BC International Intelligence Report)

Mandate

BCCAT (Council) provides an integral link between BC post-secondary institutions, education ministries, and public and private education sectors. Its mandate is to facilitate admission, articulation, and transfer arrangements among BC Transfer System member institutions, as well as to conduct research on student and credit mobility. To fulfill its mandate, the Council engages in the following activities:

- encouraging institutions to develop policies and practices regarding the transferability of post-secondary credit;
- researching issues pertaining to capacity, demand, and student mobility;
- recommending policies and practices related to the admission processes for direct entry and transfer students;

- facilitating the development of credit transfer arrangements through oversight of articulation committees; and,
- managing online resources to assist institutions in creating transfer agreements and supporting students in their education planning.

Council Status

BCCAT is a government-funded, arms-length advisory committee established by the Minister responsible for post-secondary education. As expressed in the College and Institute Act, the powers of the Minister include discretionary authority to do the following:

- establish articulation committees to advise the Minister on the equivalence of courses given at one institution or university as compared to courses given at another institution or university;
- require an institution to participate in the work of an articulation committee;
- establish committees consisting of members of boards, presidents and employees of institutions and other persons.

(Part 2, Subsections 3(l), 3(m), and 3(n))

The Council takes a consultative, facilitative approach in recommending transfer policies and practices; supporting inter-institutional cooperation and articulation; and providing information and resources for students who plan to move between institutions to receive appropriate transfer credit for previously completed studies. Council members serve the overall best interests of the post-secondary system at large and do not formally represent any specific institution or constituency with which they are affiliated.

Council Membership

The Minister responsible for post-secondary education appoints all members to the Council.

Composition

Membership is selected in accordance with the following criteria:

- Two Co-Chairs (one of whom is also the Executive Director);
- Ten representatives from public post-secondary institutions, with balanced representation from across the system;
- One representative of the BC secondary school sector (typically a Superintendent or Assistant Superintendent);
- One representative from a BC private post-secondary institution;
- One student representative;
- Two additional faculty/staff representatives from the university sector;

- Two additional faculty/staff representatives from the college and institute sectors; and
- One ex officio (voting) member who is the executive director of EducationPlannerBC.

Information about Council membership is available at bccat.ca/about/council.

Nominations

The Co-chairs identify suitable nominees by consulting with relevant constituent groups and/or institutions in the field, keeping in mind any guidelines for government-appointed positions. Normally, two individuals are nominated for each vacancy. The Executive Director then submits nominations for Council membership (in confidence) to the Ministry and the Crown Agency and Board Resourcing Office (CABRO). After the evaluation process, recommendations are made by Ministry and other governmental staff to the Minister for consideration.

Candidates for nomination should share the principles inherent in the Council's mandate, have significant experience with (and interest in) admissions and transfer-related policies and practices, and have sufficient time to make positive contributions to the work of the Council. In addition, nominees should be regarded as credible and trustworthy within their own institution/constituency/system, and should be willing to make the following commitments:

- attend Council meetings, and, where possible, serve on a committee or task force of Council;
- work within an expectation that Council members represent the broad interests of the post-secondary system and students, not the particular institution or constituency with which they are associated;
- approach issues from a problem-solving perspective and work collaboratively with other Council members to achieve consensus on policy issues; and,
- serve for the entire period of their term.

In addition to the above criteria, other factors are taken into consideration in attempting to structure the overall makeup of the Council. These considerations ensure that members (a) reflect the diversity of the system in terms of institutional size, type, and geographical location, and (b) bring a variety of specialized expertise and institutional experience to Council deliberations.

Appointments

The Minister responsible for post-secondary education makes all Council appointments and determines the duration of each appointment. Except for the student representative and ex officio member, all Council members are appointed for a three-year term and, subject to the Minister's discretion, subsequently re-appointed for one additional three-year term. The student representative is appointed for a two-year term and can be considered for reappointment for up to two additional two-year terms.

Six years is the maximum amount of time a Council member may normally serve. The term of the ex officio member is without limit but is contingent on being in the role of Executive Director for EducationPlannerBC.

The members of Council include two Co-Chairs appointed by the Minister. One Co-Chair is external, and the other is internal, i.e., also the Executive Director of BCCAT.

Co-Chairs

The external Co-Chair is appointed for a three-year term and is normally re-appointed for an additional three-year term. The external Co-Chair chairs Council meetings and provides advice and oversight for the Executive Director. If a search for an Executive Director is required, the external Co-Chair convenes a selection committee, including several Council members, to guide the search process and consults with the Ministry responsible for advanced education prior to confirming an appointment.

The Executive Director is also appointed by the Minister to serve as a Co-Chair, but without term limit. The Executive Director is responsible for administrative operations, including management of the budget, implementation of the work plan, and advancing the mandate of the Council. The Executive Director also maintains a close working relationship with the Ministry in order to bridge the strategic interests of the government with those of the Council.

Remuneration

The external Co-Chair (not the Executive Director) receives a per diem for meetings and activities pursuant to Council business. Other Council members do not receive remuneration but are reimbursed for travel expenses incurred for attending Council meetings and events.

Council's Role and Responsibilities

The Council schedules meetings four times a year. While there are no specific government directives on how the Council should achieve its mandate, its primary role and responsibilities have evolved over time to include the following actions:

- to approve an annual operating budget and work plan consistent with BCCAT's mandate and role in the BC post-secondary system;
- to monitor progress in completing the annual work plan promptly and within the approved budget;
- to receive an annual report (now referred to as the Annual Review) prepared by staff for the Ministry;
- to recommend institutional or system-wide transfer practices and policies;
- to ensure that the results of Council's work are widely distributed to the postsecondary system in a timely fashion; and
- to act as ambassadors in support of the mandate and role of BCCAT.

Notwithstanding Council's role and responsibilities as described above, Council acknowledges the Executive Director's authority to adjust the work plan and budget in response to ongoing changes and developments. When possible, the Executive Director will consult with Council and its standing committees in advance regarding significant work plan changes.

Council and Its Standing Committees

The Council establishes standing committees and task forces to oversee projects and activities, provide advice to staff, and when appropriate, to make specific recommendations to the Council. These committees are devoted to different aspects of the Council's mandate, including system-wide communication, research, admissions policy and practice, transfer practices, and course and program articulation. They are normally chaired by a Council member, and their membership is composed primarily of experienced faculty and administrators from member institutions and/or other appropriate representatives from educational groups. Council currently has three standing committees:

- Admissions (bccat.ca/about/committees/admissions)
- Transfer and Articulation (bccat.ca/about/committees/tac)
- Research (bccat.ca/about/committees/research)

Current membership information and terms of reference for the standing committees of Council are available through the links provided in the parentheses above.

Authority

By motion at its March 4, 2011 meeting, Council delegated to standing committees the authority to approve and finalize projects, including payment to project contractors.

Remuneration

Standing committee members receive no remuneration for their committee work but are reimbursed for travel expenses incurred for attending committee meetings and events.

Terms of Reference

Detailed terms of reference for standing committees are available in Appendices A-C.

BCCAT Staff

The work of the Council and committees is coordinated by BCCAT staff. BCCAT staff members are responsible for implementing the day-to-day operations of the Council by providing services that develop and maintain a viable transfer system to support student mobility.

Providing direction for transfer and pathway planning technologies

BCCAT maintains various technologies in support of student transfer, articulation, and mobility in the post-secondary sector, including the BCCAT website, the Transfer Credit Evaluation System, and the BC Transfer Guide.

Providing administrative oversight for articulation committees

Over 65 discipline- and program-specific articulation committees meet annually to discuss articulation, transfer, and equivalency within and/or across their subject areas. These committees are self-administered but conduct their work with the coordination and support of BCCAT. Their work is the foundation for negotiating institutional transfer agreements.

Commissioning research

BCCAT sponsors, supports, and engages in research related to admissions, student mobility, transfer, and other areas of the Council's mandate; recommends transfer practices and policies; and monitors transfer student success and the overall effectiveness of the BC Transfer System.

Disseminating the results of the Council's work

The Council provides a variety of publications and publication types as a means of informing its audiences of the many aspects of the Council's work. Reports, presentations, newsletters, and videos (available on the BCCAT website) are examples of Council outreach.

Sponsoring workshops, forums, and symposia

Council sponsors events to present new initiatives and share information on post-secondary practices. Past workshops, forums, and symposia have addressed topics such as block transfer, articulation issues, transfer among applied programs, secondary school transitions, and degree partnerships.

Addressing transfer problems by bringing together institutional representatives

All post-secondary institutions in the BC Transfer System formally accept a statement of Principles and Guidelines for Transfer. However, when a member institution believes that a decision made by another member institution contravenes these principles or guidelines, the institutions may seek Council's assistance in resolving the matter.

Collaborates with institutional, agency, and government representatives

Council works in partnership with governments and constituents from other provincial, pan-Canadian, and international jurisdictions.

Purpose

The ability of students to transfer credits in BC's well-developed Transfer System is integrally linked to opportunities to be admitted to and move among post-secondary institutions. The Admissions Committee examines data and issues pertaining to overall system capacity and student demand, mobility, and success. It recommends policies and practices that facilitate the admission process for direct entry and transfer students within the BC post-secondary system. The Committee works in a collegial manner that is reflective of BC's collaborative and decentralized post-secondary system made up of autonomous institutions. The Committee provides expert advice and reports to Council.

The work of the Admissions Committee is intended to be of benefit to institutions for enrolment planning, government for system planning, and students for education planning.

¹ Information on the selection of committee members

Objectives

1. Recognizing institutions' governance and decision-making processes, to recommend areas in which institutions might agree to cooperate in developing admissions policies and practices that would simplify admissions processes, remove systemic barriers, and/or assist students in their planning.
2. In cooperation with the Research Committee of Council and working closely with the Student Transitions Project Steering Committee, to initiate, approve, monitor, and disseminate information on research projects related to admissions, access, student mobility, and student success, including inter-institutional studies on overall system capacity and student demand involving direct entry and transfer students.
3. To assist institutions by providing data that could help with enrolment planning and forecasting decisions, with respect to both direct entry and transfer students.
4. To examine admissions-related trends and issues with respect to the transition of secondary school students into and among post-secondary institutions in the BC Transfer System in order to inform transition planning, support transition processes and programs (such as dual credit programs), and remove barriers.
5. To collect and disseminate comparative information about the post-secondary system, its institutions, and their admissions policies and practices, and recommend ways in which it can be provided to students, educators, and the general public, building upon the wealth of information already provided at the system level (e.g. the BC Transfer Guide) and by individual post-secondary institutions.
6. To examine admissions-related data and issues with respect to the mobility of high school and post-secondary students at the inter-provincial and international levels.
